Dallas Mavs coach joins drug testing company

Dallas Mavericks' assistant coach Rolando Blackman is joining All American Research and Drug Testing as a partner and corporate spokesman, the company said Monday.

Irving-based All American provides drug screenings, high school extracurricular drug testing, background checks, grant writing, paternity testing, drug-free workplace programs and breath alcohol testing.

Blackman, a former NCAA All-American, U.S. Olympian and NBA All-Star, will not be relinquishing his duties with the Mavericks, said Taylor Cole, a spokeswoman for All American.

"It is a wonderful way for me to give back to the industry and help shape the future of young athletes," Blackman said. "Given the current state of affairs, our young people need a strong and positive drug-free message from someone who has walked the talk."
